Presenter: To Be Determined

As professional consultants, we are required to keep up with technological innovations and stay ahead of the curve. Sometimes it feels like our clients may know more than we do – or are asking questions whose answers might require information of which we are not sure. Come learn from the man who is ahead of all this technology. This presenter will talk to us about the current status of technology front and back of the house as well as what they see as “the next greatest and best” coming to support the food service industry. This presentation will help keep us at the forefront of solutions that will help to make our client’s operations more efficient and effective.
